See Life's Precious Moments

Older Americans are at risk for developing eye diseases that can cause vision loss and impact their quality of life. Fortunately, regular eye exams and timely treatment can help save their sight and ensure they can see life's precious moments for many years to come. If eye care costs are of concern, the American Academy of Ophthalmology EyeCare America® program may be able to help.

With 6,000 volunteer Academy member ophthalmologists who provide eye care, often at no out-of-pocket cost, EyeCare America helps those who:

- are age 65 and older
- are US citizens or legal residents
- haven't seen an ophthalmologist in 3 or more years
- do not belong to an HMO or have VA eye care benefits
